

2021 Annual Report

EduCom unlocks potential for under-resourced students to become impactful global leaders, through access to holistic educational opportunities, resources, and community development.

A fresh start

In 2021, EduCom took a new direction under board president Christine Rose and CEO Lawrence Fianko. We closed down some programs and launched our pilot scholarship program. We continue our partnership with How to be Global and partnered with Force for Health.

New board members and staff brought fresh energy and ideas to the organisation, and we also bid goodbye to some of our guiding lights.

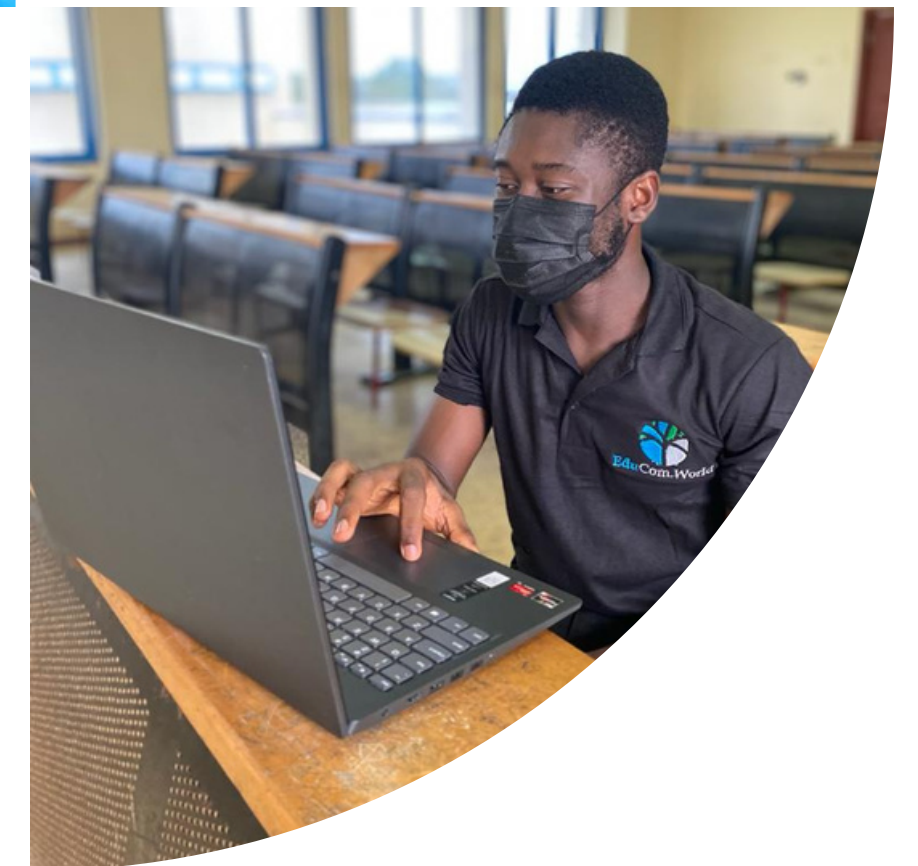

In these times of change, our values - to serve with conscience and sensitivity - remain the same and help us navigate all challenges with courage.

Pilot scholarship program

Our scholarship program in Ghana received around 200 applications, from which we selected 4 students based on their essays, interviews, and WAEC scores.

The program pays for their entire university education and residential fees, and also provides each student with a laptop.

Force for Health

Force for Health is a virtual platform that educates people about health through apps, games and videos and encourages them to spread good health in their communities, becoming a force for health in their own lives and those around them.

EduCom partnered with Force for Health to offer the app to schools and colleges in Ghana. Our four scholarship students, who are medical students, have found the app very helpful in their studies.

Single mothers with How to be Global

Continuing our partnership with How to be Global, we provided assistance to 35 single mothers in Ghana struggling to take care of their families single-handedly.

We also provided funds to Street Academy, a school in Ghana, through this partnership.

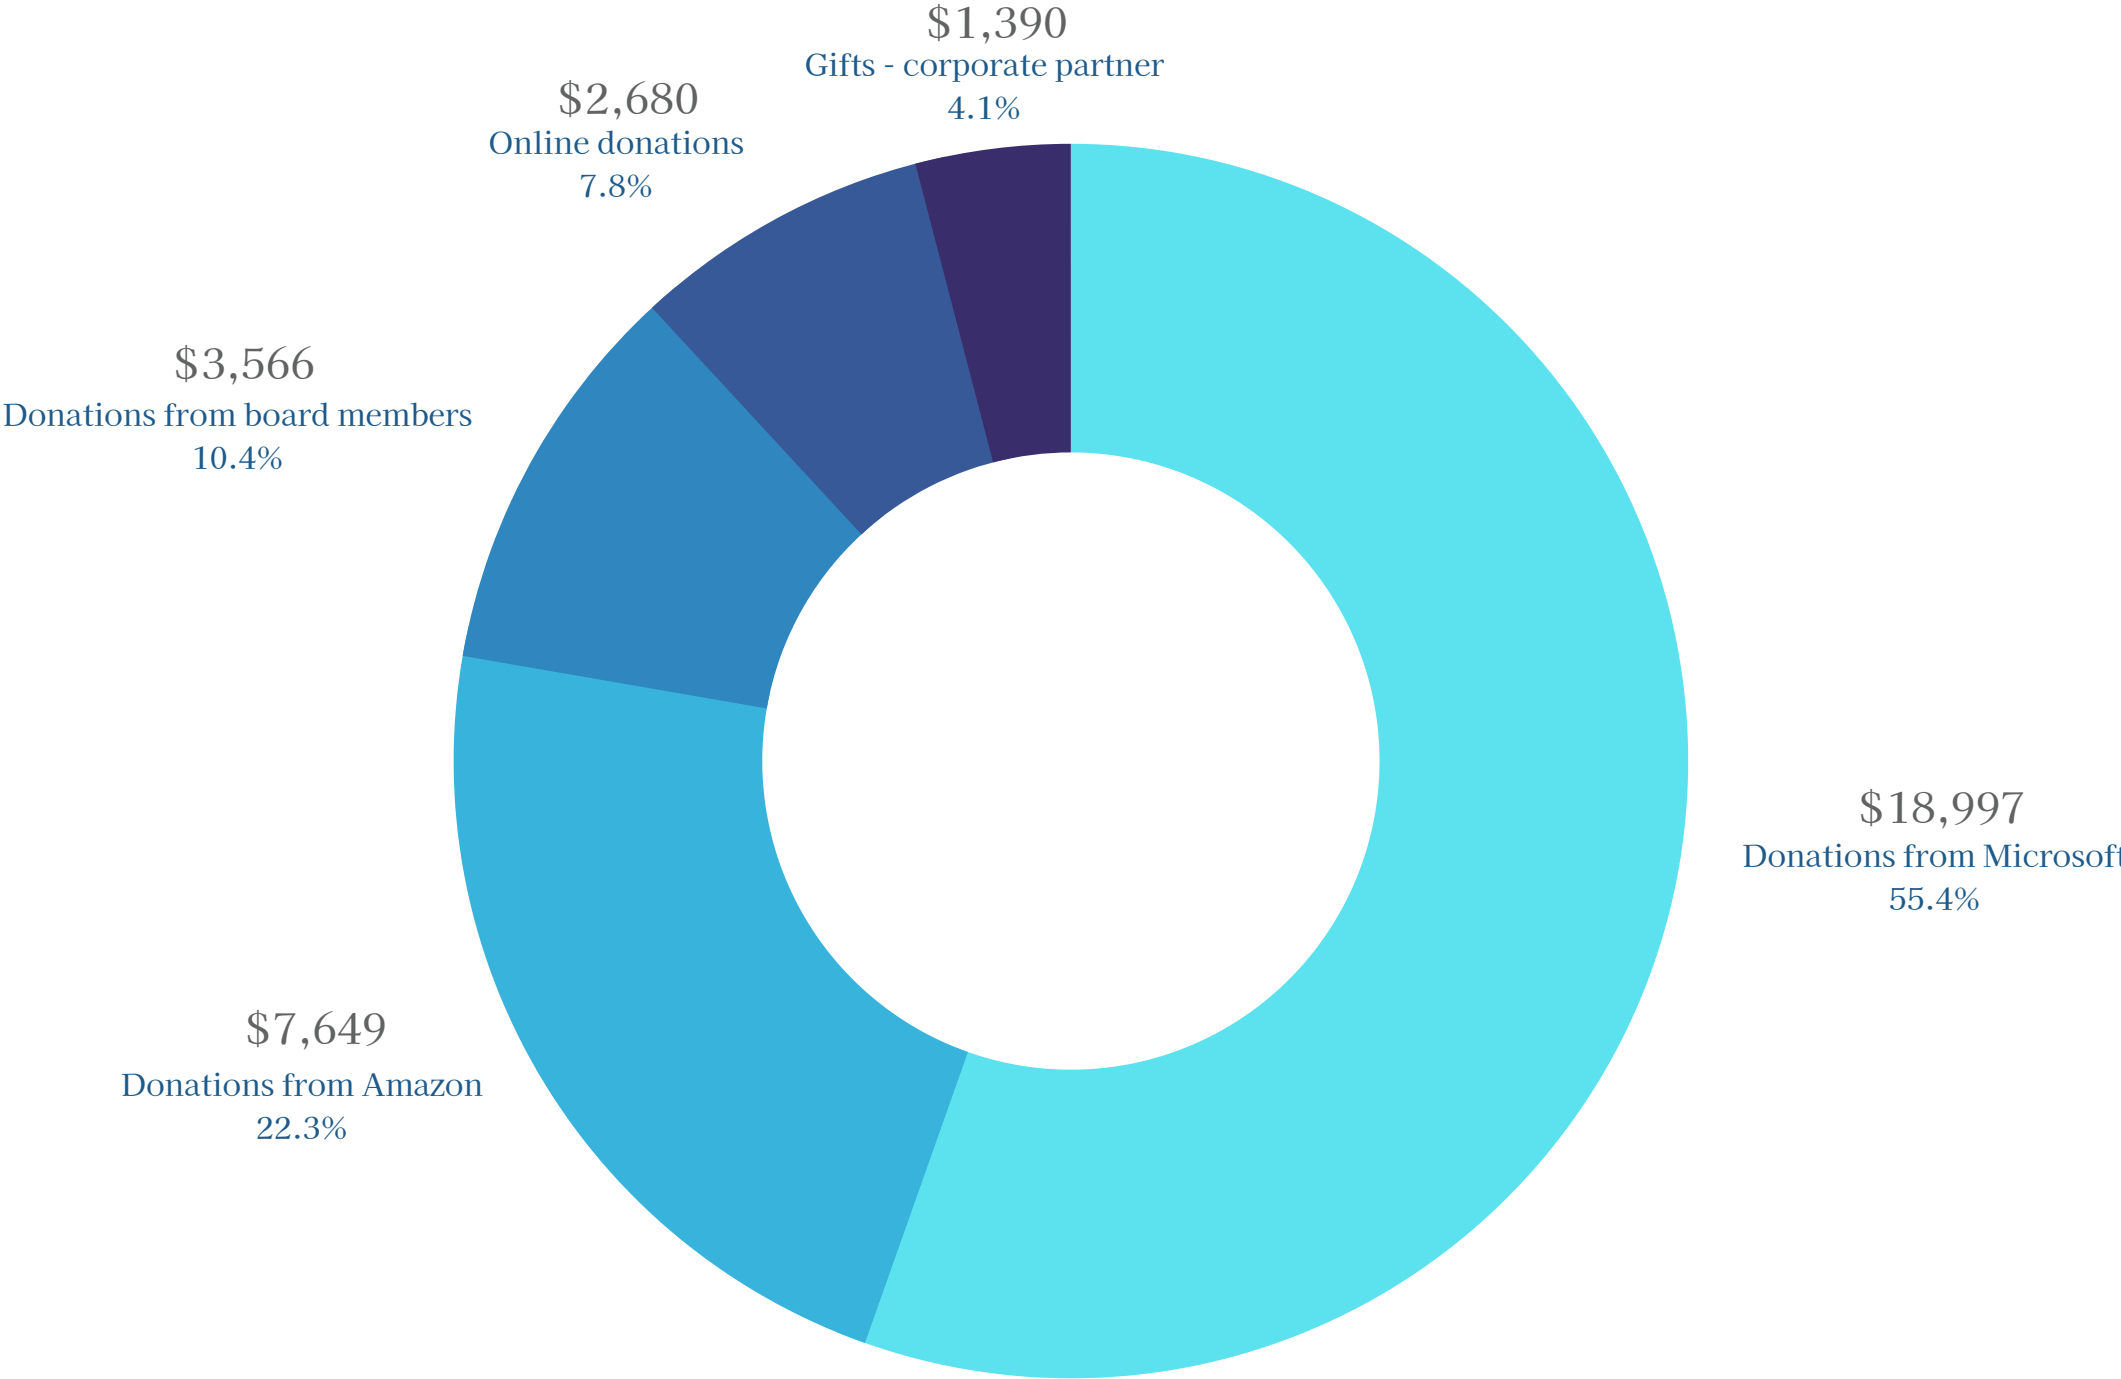

In-kind Donations

With the support of generous donors of in-kind, we donated two computers and a printer to Dawatrim Basic School in rural Ghana, a school that lacks the most basic facilities like drinking water. We also donated books to their library.

We donated books, school supplies, baby items, clothes, and food to orphanages and libraries around Ghana.
